Second-story additions create a planning furor

By NANCY HILLS

REQUESTS FOR "equal treatment" and pleas against "concrete canyons" started a tug-of-war at the Carmel Planning Commission meeting April 22, with the Village Corner restaurant location as the focus of competing concerns.

Brothers Ted and Bob Leidig's second application for second-story apartments brought numerous protests at the planning commission meeting. The application is for apartments over the Atelier and Gateway galleries on the east side of Dolores Street, next to the Village Corner on north corner of Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue.

The brothers asked that their application be given the same consideration as other second-story permits — in particular, the four apartments under construction on the corner of Sixth Avenue and San Carlos Street.

'The addition of second stories in (the commercial district) will change and distort the downtown area. The people I have talked to do not chose Carmel to have 'concrete canyons,' ' said Lew Rogers, one of at least 10 speakers against second stories additions at the meeting.

The application was continued until June 10 to allow the Leidigs time to resubmit plans.

The original submittal requested 12 apartments, a portion which would be located over the northernmost section of the Village Corner restaurant. Those plans, Ted Leidig said, have been changed to fewer apartments, all over the two galleries.

The Dolores Street apartment request is the Leidigs' second application for second-story additions. The first, approved in March, was for the Dansk and Hanson Gallery buildings on Ocean Avenue.

Many of the comments from the audience to the council concerned permitting second stories in general.

"The addition of second stories in (the commercial district) will change and distort the downtown area. The people I have talked to do not chose Carmel to have 'concrete canyons,' " Lew Rogers said, one of at least 10 speakers against second stories at the meeting.

The past three applications are "just the beginning" he said, and it is a policy the planning commission should "think through," a sentiment echoed by many others.

A few stated that the Village Corner restaurant was a "landmark" that should be preserved.

Dick Tourangeau, a Carmel attorney, said that the "probabilities are that most owners of one-story buildings will eventually want to convert to two story. If that occurs, the cumulative effect will have significant impact on the Carmel environment — water, sewage, traffic parking, noise, air quality, density and intensity of use" of all city services.

The planning commission, however, has pointed out that the current general plan encourages second-story apartments and they have no legal basis to deny an application.

Marathon mania

BRAD HAWTHORNE of Oakland (above) was the clear winner in the second running of the Big Sur International Marathon April 26. Hawthorne, here seen greeted by Municipal Court Judge William Burleigh, race director, blistered the course record with a 2:16:39 clocking, knocking 19 minutes off last year's record and seven minutes faster than runner-up Jay Johnson. It took a year of preparation, 800 volunteers and $90,000 to stage this year's race, which featured 1,500 runners and produced times that organizers said should put the marathon among the elite in the world. In top picture, some of the more than 1,500 runners hit a flat stretch of Highway 1 during the race, which started at 7 a.m. at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and ended 26.2 miles later at Rio Road. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Enough is enough

Dear Editor:

I would like to respond to a letter to the editor in the April 16 Pine Cone, under the title "Where are Priorities?"

The hostility used by David Maradei in expressing himself speaks volumes in why it was so hard to work with the last administration, and why the residents voted so overwhelmingly for a change.

I realize in this day that it is a shock when a candidate makes every effort to implement his campaign promises, and I can understand why some people find it difficult adjusting to an administration of straightforward "action" after having years of familiar "reaction" governing, but their monotonous and distasteful sniping is offensive to the majority of Carmel residents.

Implications were made that the mayor does not respond unless under media or public pressure. Just the contrary has been proven. When fresh and constructive suggestions are made, the council acts — an example, when Tom May recommended an alternative to the library annex.

Our city council is making every effort to complete the carryover from the previous council and to solve our current problems in an open, honest, and fair manner that will benefit the entire community.

Let's stop this nit-picking. If you can't be fair and constructive, please stop being a poor loser. Enough is enough.

Setting an example

Dear Editor:

It seems fashionable to complain about the deplorable state of the English language as it is spoken by young Americans. Witness a recent letter to Ann Landers and the current episode of Doonesbury, as exmaples.

But a stroll past the Golden Bough Cinema in Carmel will reveal the poster for the movie Raising Arizona. Referring to the subjects of the film it says, "Their lawless years are behind them. Their child-rearing years lay ahead..." Are they? Did they? The advertising campaign for this film cost millions of dollars and passed through scores, if not hundreds of hands, including those employed by 20th Century Fox distribution and advertising departments and those of the director and producer, both university graduates. Did no one notice the mixture of tenses?

This, however, does not begin to rival the opening lines of Kenny Rogers' durable hit, Through The Years. They state that "I can't remember when you weren't there or when I didn't care for anyone but you." Of course this means precisely the opposite of what the songwriter presumably intended to say. How many people were involved in the production of this record? How many times did they hear it before its release?

And would you buy a used car from a man who promotes it in the classified ads with the words "runs good?"

Even my dogs become confused when their box of biscuits announces "Now! Milk-Bone dog treats is better tasting..."

Let us not be too hard on the kids. After all, what kind of example is we setting?

Help us help

Dear Editor:

Speaking for myself and our board of directors, I want to express appreciation to the Pine Cone, and to your reporter David Leland, for the excellent article on youth suicide in your April 23 issue.

We feel that the more people know about the problem, the better our chances of doing something about it. We encourage third party calls on our Crisis Line (649-8008) if you're worried about someone else; call us and we'll help you to help!

By coincidence, your article appeared just as we are about to go before the Carmel City Council requesting funds. Due to problems not caused either by the city or us, we did not receive notification of the application process. Consequently, the city's cultural commission was not able to recommend a grant for us among their other recommendations. Thus our request goes directly to the city council at its May 5 meeting.

We would very much appreciate it if citizens would let the city council know that you support funding for the Suicide Prevention Center.

Again, thanks to the Pine Cone for your excellent coverage.

Make it a tradition

Dear Editor:

While the runners in the Big Sur Marathon came across the finish line, I wondered about the people who have complained in the past year about this marathon.

Most of the reasons given are that the businesses aren't making as much money as they would on normal weekends. I feel that these people should consider what they are saying. They are saying they would rather make whatever money they can on this particular weekend and stop thousands of people from having a good time.

To me this sounds rather greedy. The money raised from this event is given to local charities, which in turn help the community. A community that has to deal with the truckloads of tourists that support these very same merchants who want to close this race.

In my opinion the only people who have a right to gripe about the road being closed are the residents of Big Sur. But how can they complain about living in such a beautiful environment? Why do they want to stop thousands of people from enjoying the incredible beauty that they have the privilege of living in?Maybe they have forgotten how pretty the coast is? How much damage can a road being closed for five hours on a Sunday morning cause?

Here's a suggestion to those residents: Get some friends together, find a nice place on the road and watch runners go by. Or maybe run in the race. Or read the Sunday paper.

I would like to congratulate Mr. Burleigh and all the runners, cheerers and volunteers who made this race what it was. I would like to see it become a tradition.

Obsolete thinking

Dear Editor:

I don't know who Mr. Gilliam is or what his qualifications are for thinking he is knowledgeable about the highway needs in this area. I do think he is quite ignorant about the background and facts concerning a road through Hatton Canyon. I have quite a file on this subject, having been a supporter of such a highway since the matter first came up more than 30 years ago.

Conditions since then have only gotten worse and there is no hope for improvement without this road. Such a road, by the way, has to be esthetically acceptable because Caltrans has designated it as part of the scenic highway plan of California. It would not be a freeway.

The need for freeways or other highways is caused by there being too many people. In the last 50 or so years the population of the United States has increased by about 100 million people. I wonder what Mr. Gilliam is doing to cut down the population growth.

The people are here and something has to be done about them. Yesterday at 4 p.m. cars were backed up all the way from Rio Road to the Safeway store so that people going shopping couldn't get into a parking space without waiting for the line to move. It took me 15 minutes to get from Safeway to Rio Road and Highway 1. Should this be considered normal?

I think Mr. Gilliam has picked out of the Caltrans EIR the parts that suited his purpose in preventing a road through Hatton Canyon. From what I have heard from people who have walked through there it is not all that great, and I have never heard of a shortage of Monterey Pines. They grow easily from seedlings.

Also, Mr. Gilliam seems to be willing to save trees there, which no one sees, but thinks nothing of losing many more than the 100 he mentions along Highway 1, which presently create a beautiful entrance to the Carmel area. Can you visualize what this road would look like if those trees were removed and the road paved over? A four-lane highway would require a divider strip and Mesa and Atherton would be blocked off from access to it, thus sending traffic through the Hatton Fields residential area out to Ocean Avenue, causing more congestions there. This would be good?

I don't know what would happen to Morse Drive but this would probably be blocked off too. The people who built the beautiful homes south of Ocean Avenue would not have put them there if the highway department had not agreed long ago not to widen Highway 1. Is it fair that they should lose some of their property now? (See Lois Starnes' letter in the April 9 Pine Cone on this subject.)

Thought should also be given to the ability of police cars, fire trucks, and ambulances to move freely to their destinations. This is already difficult.

If lack of a road through Hatton Canyon would bring fewer cars and people to this area, there should be fewer cars and people here now than 10 or 20 years ago since the road has not been built. Obviously this is not true.

The state has said that if a road is not put through Hatton Canyon the property would be sold. This would include the commercial property next to the Mission Inn and Safeway. Who would buy the land if it couldn't be developed? This would bring more people and more businesses which would add further congestion in the area. This would be desirable?

Furthermore, there would have to be a road through Hatton Canyon for whatever would be built in there, thus destroying Mr. Gilliam's riparian woodland anyway. This road would undoubtedly also be used as a shortcut for valley to Monterey drivers yet it would not be adequate for this purpose. Furthermore, the property would be lost forever to improve conditions on Highway 1.

Far from the obsolete thinking of 30 years ago, I think Mr. Gilliam should look ahead a little bit and foresee the results of his way of thinking. The people trying to block a road through Hatton Canyon are the ones who have no vision!

A job well done

Dear Editor:

I am not writing to dispute the opinion of the woman who alleges cruelty in the "ranching of minks" (Letters to the Editor, April 9) and the sufferings they undergo being raised at the farm for coats. I am a little surprised she did not include or sympathize with cattle, pork and poultry who undergo injections of hormones to fatten them and the cruel death many other farm-raised animals suffer not even to mention the killing of game for sport.

Whatever one's opinion on the subject I was horrified that her letter was the only notice (and negative at that) of one of the most impressive private attempts by people in the community to try and alleviate "human suffering" due to terminal cancer.

Alas, the sale of a beautiful but second-hand mink coat can not resurrect the lives of the little minks but as one of hundreds of items lovingly parted with by the community, some strides were made to care for the sufferings of our own friends and family.

On Sunday, March 28 I felt privileged to attend the benefit given privately for the Hospice by Mr. John Keller, Lewis Scott and Mrs. Artie Earley. No one perhaps knows better than I the many months of preparation and thousands of hours of work expended by these individuals as well as their friends to raise the sum of $27,500 to help the work of the Hospice.

It was heartwarming to see, again, the overwhelming response of the community by merchants, friends and well wishers, many who donated wine, food or cherished possessions such as the mink coat in question to make this event the success it truly was. Many of us know John Keller postponed surgery until the benefit had passed in order to give it his all.

Through the truly selfless efforts of these three individuals almost $75,000 has been given over to the Hospice in the past three years.

It is particularly noteworthy that in these days of professional charity fund-raising and massive computer mailouts, that all that these people (and the help of their friends) was done without expending a single penny.

I think they deserve some praise for their superhuman efforts. A job well done.

Good for Carmel

Dear Editor:

The undersigned are former members of Carmel's Planning Commission. We all worked closely with Marieta ("Sandy") Swain and we all learned from her. Although we did not always agree with Sandy, nevertheless we all respected her opinion. We believe that she made outstanding contributions to our village. Each of us will miss her. Council will consider revised water ordinance

By DAVID LELAND

THE CARMEL city council Tuesday will consider a water ordinance which would pre-empt the city's existing water law, paving the way for completion of some projects currently held up at the planning stage.

The proposed ordinance, the result of a special city council meeting in March and heard last week by the Carmel Planning Commission, attempts to provide further direction to Carmel's limited water resources by limiting growth and continuing conservation methods.

The council will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 5, in the Carmel Woman's Club, located at Ninth Avenue and San Carlos Street.

Under the new ordinance, projects filed with city planners before March 13 would be given the go-ahead. Most other construction which would increase water usuage would be put on hold.

There are several major municipal projects which would be released if the ordinance is passed, along with several private endeavors.

City projects include the Harrison Memorial Library Annex, a 24-unit senior housing project, a second public restroom, Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Plan, the proposed Stanton Theater at Sunset Center and at least one new parking structure.

While it is unclear the total number of private projects awaiting approval by the planning staff, there are at least 11 major ones that would be immediately released with the new ordinance.

These include condominiums, a motel/restaurant, apartments, shops, office space and a residential care facility.

Under the proposed ordinance, private or commercial property owners wishing to build on vacant lots of record that would be for private use would be exempt from the moratorium.

In order to carry out the ordinance the city plans to establish a water reserve of 5 percent — 1,030.8 acre feet. If at any time the reserve falls to 2 percent, all building applications would be put on hold until the reserves increase.

IF THE Carmel City Council agrees to a lease of the Crocker Bank building, which will house the library annex, the people parking cars there daylong will need to find parking elsewhere. The city plans only short-term parking in that lot.

The city plans to create conservation by replacing existing hardware with water-saving devices and requiring similar water-saving plumbing on new construction.

Also, the ordinance suggests planning irrigation that uses less water, such as low-output sprinkler heads and drip systems and selecting plants that require less water.

If the water reserve falls below 2 percent under the proposed ordinance, no applications for water consuming projects will be accepted. During that time only projects deemed to have no impact on water consumption would be allowed.

ALSO AT Tuesday's meeting the city council will be faced with the planning commission's recent decision declaring the sale of the Flanders Mansion and Martin Way properties inconsistent with the city's general plan.

Last December the council declared those properties surplus and began the sale process. The council planned to use the money from the sale to help pay for the city's share of the vacated Crocker Bank building, which will now house the library annex.

Last April, the planning commission bowed to public pressure and reversed a two-year-old commission decision that found the sale of the property consistent with the general plan.

The sale would have included a two-acre meadow with a view of the Carmel Mission Basilica and 1.43 acres of Mission Trail Park where Flanders Mansion is located.

The council can either agree with the planning commission and reverse its recent decision or it can declare the sale in conformance with the general plan and proceed with putting the property on the market.

Other matters which will come before the city council are:

• The council is scheduled to receive the final contract from the state Coastal Conservancy rearding a grant of $200,000 slated for the beach restoration project.

In March the conservancy approved the grant, but the final wording has taken more than a month to nail down between councilmembers and the conservancy.

• The city will receive a request from Pine Inn owner Richard Gunner attempting to buy the city-owned land on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue.

Previously, the Pine Inn had been planning a joint venture with the city in building an underground parking garage at that site on which the library annex would rest upon.

But when the city decided to use the vacant Crocker Bank building for its annex, it abandonded plans for its effort with the Pine Inn.

• The council will hear a resolution authorizing Mayor Clint Eastwood and/or City Administrator Doug Schmitz to execute a five-year lease agreement with Wells Fargo Bank for the library annex in the vacant Crocker Bank building.

At that time, the council will also decide if it wants to appropriate lease funds for the purchase, which could cost the city about $1.75 million.

Schmitz said the city hopes to have a lease agreement formed by June 1. At that time, the parking lot at the bank — which is now used for unlimited parking — would fall under city regulations with time limits imposed.

• The council will also consider reappointing Planning Commissioner Bill Brown to a second term of four years.

Brown, who took planning commissioner Sandy Swain's seat when Eastwood "fired" the planning commission after his election, is the only member up for reappointment this year.

The marathon is finally over for the Little family

By NANCY HILLS

MATT LITTLE likes some marathons. He ran the Big Sur International Marathon April 26.

But other marathons he can do without. The six years it took to get permits for reconstruction of his family's Carmel Sands Motel/Simpson's Restaurant probably would qualify as one he could have passed on.

The Carmel Planning Commission April 22 approved the project's final design review with flying colors, sending Little and his architect, Gene Takikawa, out the door blushing at the praise and heads reeling with the speed of the vote.

"I've seen enough of it," Commissioner Fred Keeble jokingly said. "I recommend approval."

The vote was unanimous for the Carmel stone and cedar structure.

Now, that it's over, Little said he must start on the bidding process for the demolition and reconstruction of the 42-room motel built in the 1950s and the 120-seat bar and restaurant. The number of motels rooms and restaurant/bar seats will stay the same.

The new building will also house an additional 3,000 square feet for Little's Carmel Insurance office, now located over Nielsen's Market on the corner of San Carlos Street and Seventh Avenue.

The two-story complex covers 20,201 square feet on a 33,000 square feet site. One thousand square feet, the west corner, is reserved for a scenic easement to save a large redwood tree. Total floor area of the buildings is 30,798 square feet.

An underground garage will provide 53 parking spaces for all the facilities, with valet parking of up to 79 spaces.

"I'm just happy they're happy," said Robert Little, Matt's father and part-owner of the project, after the meeting.

Construction, once it starts, will take a minimum of eight months and a maximum of 12, Matt Little said. The operation could begin as early as fall or as late as next spring, he added. Either time would aim for an early summer re-opening date.

Little originally applied for the reconstruction of the project in 1981, but was stopped when a building moratorium was imposed while work on a new general plan proceeded. He was denied an exemption from an extension of the moratorium and reapplied in 1984 when the moratorium was lifted.

But the debate over the application raged on until its approval by the city council on appeal in 1985.

The planning commission, though it denied the applicaton, was divided about whether to allow the complete demolition and rebuilding of an existing structure which no longer met city zoning codes. The number of motel units on the site is greater than current code permits.

The council approved the project but without the office space, feeling it would increase traffic on an already busy corner and the proposed on-site parking was insufficient for the additional use.

The new council, elected April 1986, amended the use permit to include the office space.

Little said he still has to get a permit from the Coastal Commission, but does not know when it is scheduled for their agenda.

Because of new plumbing and water-saving devices, the motel/restaurant/office complex is projected to use less water than the old motel and restaurant.

"In the long run, absolutely for the family, it will be worth it," Little said about pursuing the application for so long.

IN OTHER business, the commission:

• Reviewed a proposed permanent water ordinance. The ordinance will be reviewed in a public hearing by the Carmel City Council May 5 and return to the planning commission (see related story, this issue.)

The ordinance allows construction on vacant lots record and could release all projects that have been pending since the city imposed a building moratorium last September on development that increases water consumption in the city.

The moratorium was imposed after the city exceeded its annual water allocation from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District last year.

The ordinance also sets up a hierarchy of developments which would receive permits once the city has established a 2 percent reserve of its allocation. First would be specific plans and under-utilized land, such as the R-4 district.

After a 5 percent reserve is established, all applications would be accepted.

Housing and circulation elements top General Plan discussions

HOUSING AND circulation were the key issues discussed at the General Plan meeting Saturday, April 25.

The meeting wrapped up a review of the text changes in the general plan. The next step, according to planning commission chairman Ken White, are at least two study sessions for the commission to discuss public input and the proposed changes.

The meetings are open to the public, but are primarily for discussion among the commissioners. The first is scheduled for 3:15 p.m. Thursday, May 7 in Carmel City Council Chambers. The second is scheduled for Wednesday, May 20.

The Housing Element contains one the biggest proposed changes in the plan — using "subordinate units" as affordable housing, a policy questioned by Carmel resident Howard Nieman, Jr. (Subordinate units is the term used by the committee for second kitchens.)

Nieman said that if the units are legalized, they probably would no longer be affordable because they then could be advertised. That would increase the number of people competing for the supply. He also said from what he had heard about rents in the units, they were not affordable right now and should not be designated as such until that was an established fact.

Local attorney Francis "Skip" Lloyd also stated that legalizing the units was basically legalizing duplexes in the residential district. Instead of an R-1 zone, it would be an R-2 zone.

"They will become permanent second units in Carmel," Lloyd said.

Nieman added that when the city legalizes the second units, it "may have created 500 potential motel units."

The committee responded by stating that the permit process would be impeded by those problems and the numerical cap would keep the number under control. Current laws against transient units would keep the motel room problem under control.

Nieman, however, said he was not certain that the city's transient room code was legal as it now reads.

The committee is currently reviewing an ordinance to map out requirements for legalization of subordinate units. The ordinance, in its present rough form, sets a numercial cap on the units within the city — 500 — and provides for an amnesty period when current illegal units can receive a permit.

Hardship cases would be exempt from the numerical cap.

Lloyd suggested that the enabling ordinances, often referred to by the committee, be available to the public.

Second-story additions create controversy

They have, in their discussions about second stories, been concerned about policies on parking. City code does not require parking for residential development in the commercial district.

THE "VILLAGE Corner" application also provoked a protest of unfair treatment from Bob Leidig to the commission, basing his comments on the second-story coverage — four apartments — granted to Jody LeTowt and the Goold Building permit last year.

The Goold building second-story addition was one of the first applications approved by the new planning commission after the city election last year.

The Leidigs claimed that their applications are not being held to the same floor area to land area standard as the Goold Building. They say the Goold building standard is less restrictive than the one used for the Dansk project or the one proposed for the Dolores Street site.

Leidig protested not only the treatment of the Dolores Street application (usually referred to as the Village Corner application), but also the square footage approved by the commission for the Dansk and Hanson Gallery buildings fronting Ocean Avenue.

The Leidigs have appealed that ruling to the city council. It may be heard at the May 5 city council meeting.

The appeal states "The planning commission erred in computing allowable floor area/lot coverage with respect to second-floor residential addition and applied calculations inconsistently to this property as compared to an identical parcel across the street (the Goold building)."

They are requesting an increase of approximately 1,500 square feet, to provide for a maximum of six apartments as approved by the planning commmission. The commission allowed a total of 3,000 square feet for the Dansk building. That additional 1,500 square feet, the Leidigs said, would bring them in par with the Goold building.

Both the Goold and Dansk applications were for second-story additions on buildings which exceed the present code for site coverage.

The Leidigs claim that the Goold building received "beneficial treatment" from the planning commission.

The commission granted the Goold/LeTowt application more building square footage per land square footage than the Dansk project, the Leidigs claim.

"Is it because they didn't know better or because of the political climate of the present administration?" Ted Leidig said. "All we want is equal treatment."

THE FIRST application for the Dolores Street second story requested 12 apartments spread over three buildings — a portion of the Village Corner restaurant and the entire Atelier Gallery and Gateway Gallery buildings.

The Leidigs have changed the plans to second stories over the Atelier Gallery and Gateway Gallery only. However, they have included the Village Corner in the land site square footage.

That allows them to base the permitted square footage for a second story on a 12,000 square foot land site. With that amount of land, the allowed second-story coverage would be 7,040 square feet, the Leidigs said is a later interview with The Carmel Pine Cone. They will probably request only six or seven apartments, he added.

For a two-story building, the existing Dolores Street single-level locations are over coverage. To alleviate that, the planning commission could decide to subtract the overcoverage from the allowed square footage on the second story as it did with Dansk building application.

Rather than do that, Bob Leidig said they may tear down the Village Corner restaurant, which is about the same size as the overcoverage — 1,008 square feet.

Bob Leidig explained that the family wants the city to decide on policy for second stories — a policy that will be interpreted "equally among applicants."

"We have many properties that are 40 to 50 years old that are in need of major refurbishing," Bob Leidig said.

The refurbishing includes rebuilding many roofs, he said. They wish to know if they can put second stories on the buildings because that will affect their "substantial investment in roofs."

The brothers own 14 and a half lots in the business district, Ted Leidig said.

They have a third application submitted for apartments over the Court of the Fountains on the west side of Mission Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues but they added they may not pursue that project.

What may seem like a sudden onslaught of applications, they said, is actually the culmination of years of planning.

But watching other applications for second stories and other developments in town, Ted Leidig said they began to feel "hemmed in" and started making their own applications.

"We were getting surrounded," he said.

The concern over second stories in town, they said, is unjustified.

"There are only seven or eight possible locations in town and we own most of them," Bob Leidig said.

Math masters

LAST SATURDAY Carmel Middle School and Carmel High students shone brightly in the Monterey County Office of Education's 19th annual Mathletics competition. Students had one hour and 20 minutes to complete testing in each of the eight levels of that included: seventh and eighth-grade math, Algebra I, geometry, Algebra II, trigonometry, Calculus A & B and Calculus B & C. CARMEL HERITAGE

By Betty Barron

Stones of Carmel

CARMEL, CARVED out of the sea, the sand-strewn coastline like a lovely mermaid flung up on the land, bringing treasures from the depths. (Apologies to Loren Eiseley, whose The Immense Journey is a definitive work on our origins and emergence from the sea.)

Carmel is truly an original...a natural. Never has Carmel been called the "Rio de Janeiro of the U.S.," or the "Nice of California," or horrors of horrors, the "Ixtapa of the North." We are unique. And, yet we do have an affinity to Portofino, that graceful village on the Gulf of Tigullio along the Italian Riviera. Portofino, like Carmel, has been an inspirational haven for artists and writers, from Guy de Maupassant to Hemingway, and our own Carmel impressionist, the late Patricia Cunningham.

A difference in the two villages is the busy and colorful Portofino harbor of yachts and fishing boats.

But, the strongest bond is stone.

Portofino's local stones, pudinga, which come out of the sea, are chunky with bits of shells imbedded in the rough exterior, since the Mediterranean is far more pebbly and shell-splintered than our Carmel Bay. But, the analogy still holds. Our smooth, rounded monotone stones have found their way out of the sea to be used for building, just as the people of Portofino have used their pudinga.

Carmel's master builder was Robinson Jeffers, who, in 1919 began carrying stones, one by one, up the steep slope from the sea around him. Tor House is but an extension of the rocky shores of Carmel Point, a gift from the sea forever imprisoned on land.

Walk around the point some day and feel the tug of the tide as if to erode the earth and wash away Tor House. But, Jeffers built his lookout to endure, a lasting monument.

It seems incredible that this year is the 100th anniversary of his birth...the 25th anniversary of his death.

To me it is incredible because I met Robinson Jeffers one day about 35 years ago, wandering alone on the road behind Tor House, and it seems "only yesterday." And, one day during those years I stopped by for his grandson, Lindsay Jeffers, who was a pre-schooler with my daughter Mary at the newly formed cooperative venture now called Bay School. More recently, I have come to know a younger grandson, Robin Jeffers, an engaging young man who sails so expertly out of the Monterey Marina, his way of embracing the sea.

There are the stones of Carmel and then there is Carmel stone. This more fragile and porous caramel-colored counterpart lends itself to building also. It can be sliced, carved, pebbled and designed. We see it everywhere in Carmel, forming foundations, chimneys and walkways.

Have you noticed the little fortress on Monte Verde between 10th and 11th Avenues guarding a prim wood siding home, and providing shelter for a bouffant holly tree? Some innovative builder even made machicolations along the wall, much like a crenellated castle tower, not for a gun emplacement, I am certain, but for a peephole, to be used, perhaps while gardening, to scan the street, a window on the world from the security of his domain. A nice touch.

There is room for both in Carmel, the stones of Carmel and Carmel stone.

Not long ago as Cobblestone Inn was in the process of building on Junipero, I found myself with a group of Carmelites, one a newcomer, who said as she surveyed the inn, "Stones are not Carmel...not right for a Carmel inn." What could be more Carmel than its foundation — its very essence — stones cast up from the sea.

Adobe clay was first used for building and is still used (two charming ranch style homes on Atherton Road in Hatton Fields, built in the 1950s, are two fine examples.) Manmade bricks and glass and plaster and steel have left their imprint around the village, but the stones of Carmel make a strong statement and are an irrefutable influence on our special Carmel style...a part of our heritage.

(A message from Robinson Jeffers: "My ghost you needn't look for...it is probably here, but a dark one, deep in the granite...")

Note: Tours of Tor House, by arrangement with Tor House Foundation, Carmel.

Join us at the "Hats Off to Clint Party," Sunday, May 3, at the Mission Ranch Barn, 3 to 6 p.m. Jake Stock's Abalone Stompers will play. Open to all Carmel Heritage members. Yearly memberships of $10 will be accepted at the door.

Music in the air

By DEIDI KRAMER

IT'S SPRING, and "there's music in the air" might just be an understatment at both Carmel Middle School and Carmel High School these days.

At the request of the Hewlett-Packard Foundation, the CMS Jazz Band performed April 8 at their convention at the Carmel Valley Inn. The band was promptly whisked back to middle school to greet parents for Open House Night. Two engagements in one evening give some indication of the quality performances Director Karen King and her students achieve.

Come hear for yourself Friday, May 1 at Del Monte Shopping Center where the Jazz Band will be performing at noon in honor of Public Schools Week. On May 24, they can also be heard at the Monterey Squid Festival at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

The CMS Orchestra will be visiting River and Tularcitos elementary schools the week of May 11, while the 54-member Concert Band traveled to Captain Cooper School in Big Sur on April 23.

The Carmel High School Band recently welcomed eighth-grade parents with music and information about the music program at Carmel High. Offerings for the 1987-88 school year include band, orchestra, and beginning band, as well as choir.

This past weekend, the CHS Band and Orchestra and Director Dick Robins took time out from a busy spring concert rehearsal schedule to participate in the Six Flag Festival at Hart High School in Newhall, and at Magic Mountain. The students sponsored several car washes, raising approximately $1,000 to help fund their trip. Additional funding was provided by the CUSD Music Boosters.

Supt. Robert Infelise accompanied the 29 band and orchestra members to the festival where they performed for a panel of educators. Each group then received a private on-stage clinic. The musicians were well-rewarded for their efforts, as the CHS Band received the bronze medal plaque, and the CHS Orchestra, the silver medal plaque to display at Carmel High School. A special commendation, rarely given to an individual member of a group, was presented to violinist Misha Rosenker.

Impressed with the knowledge both he and the students gained from the clinic, Robins promised that the upcoming spring concert will be "all the better for it." Mark your calendars for Wednesday, May 20, when "spring" officially arrives at Sunset Center.

Carmel Monterey Travel offers African safaris

We take great pleasure in offering you the results of many months of planning for our expedition to Africa in September. We have tried successfully to book the best and most interesting hotels and game lodges, and to plan an itinerary that will show you the best of Kenya and Tanzania under the most favorable of conditions.

Kenya is an amazing country because, although it is a "third world" country, with many of the problems of population, etc., it still retains the traditions of the British regime: the food is very English (leg of lamb with mint jelly sort of thing), and the service is quite elegant. We are staying at the Norfolk Hotel in Nairobi, because it has a magnificent history and the fact that it still maintains the aura of the safaris of old. The ghost of Hemingway still lurks.

One of the problems is the road maintenance, and for that reason, we have charted twin-engine aircraft for the longer distances.

Tanzania has suffered through some rocky years, but seems have gotten their tourism house in order. The accommodations will probably not be up to Kenya standards, but the game is so prolific, and the Ngorongoro Crater so special, that we felt it was worth a bit of discomfort. Incidentally, you may wonder why we are not going into the Serengheti. At this time of year, the animals from the Serengheti have migrated north to the Masai Mara in Kenya — and we will see them there.

We hope you will be able to join the lucky 15 on this wing safari. If you have any questions about the trip, please call the Carmel-Monterey Office at 624-1501. We hope to see you in September!

How to fly a kite

DO KIDS fly kites anymore? The question occurred to us this week as the annual Carmel Kite Festival popped up for its 56th appearance at our local beach.

On second thought, maybe we were really thinking, do kids fly kites anymore the way we flew kites back in the old days?

The two of us, as kids, flopped miserably in both the construction and aerodynamics of kites. Piazza failed during numerous sessions beside Lake El Estero, while Bloom had no greater success racing his kites at Riverview Park in Kankakee, Ill.

What we lacked as kids seems fairly obvious in retrospect. Our first mistake was in not finding out how to build a kite properly. Apparently we didn't research the project too well. It was a matter of "Everybody's doing it. I think I'll give it a try. At least it'll keep me busy until the next game comes along."

Our second mistake, it turns out, was a bit more personal: we really lacked the patience to fly a kite. Flying a kite is a long slow satisfying pleasure, not at all like the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat. The hard-won success of flying a kite is a kind of personal vindication: "Give yourself an attaboy. With patience and discipline you did it."

Now we can fess up to our failings as adolescent kite-flyers, but we two investment detectives don't care to repeat those childish mistakes as responsible adults. If our investment ideas fly as erratically as our Rube Goldberg kites used to, then we're going to be looking pretty foolish.

So here are some thoughts on the subject of investing that take off from our kite-flying reminiscences.

How does one design a portfolio that will fly? Have you bothered to research the subject on your own or with an advisor you feel has your best interests at heart?

We've said it before and we'll say it again. You shouldn't allow the excitement of this bull market to blind you to the perennial quality of blue chip stocks. Questions about when to buy or sell, when to get in or out of the market, are sometimes meaningless if you're flying a flimsy portfolio.

Additionally we've gleaned from our kite-flying days valuable ideas applicable to our current economic environment, especially to this increasingly volatile stock market. Patience, patience, patience. Discipline, discipline, discipline. The words merit some repeating.

Neither your kite nor your presumably high-quality stocks will climb high if you're in the market for the quick kill.

And you can't learn patience or discipline, it seems to us, by listening to every radio tout, every TV guru, every hotshot of the hour who has a new scheme or angle that panders to your greed or fear and doesn't care a hoot for your long-range financial well-being.

And you can't learn patience or discipline if your concept of investing is based on getting in or out of the market before the other folks figure out how crafty you are.

It seems to us that good investing in stocks is nothing more than buying your personal share of the most solid businesses in our economy.

Quality and patience and discipline. It's tough for a kid to understand their importance. But of course all a kid wants to do is play a game.

PADRE PRATTLE

By Meredith May

Musical youth

THIS YEAR'S rejuvenated Carmel High School Band and Chamber Orchestra have made quite an impression upon CHS students and parents. The 24 member band is made up largely of this year's incoming freshman and a few old faithfuls. Carmel has not heard music at its sports events or rallies for two years.

The CHS band, directed by Mr. Robins from Newhall has already proven its outstanding talent at its first concert last December. Properly entitled "New Beginnings," the young musicians played for an audience of more than 500 people. Held in the picturesque Sunset Center Theater, the concert was performed after only three months of preparation.

Consequently, the success of the "New Beginnings" concert inspired a spring concert which is scheduled for May 20. Once again in the Sunset Center Theater, this concert will combine classical, jazz and contemporary pieces. The students will perform the famous "Peter and the Wolf," with narration from KBOQ DJ David Wittrock. Also included in the repertoire are two solo pieces. Misha Rosenker will play the violin and Trey Post will play the clarinet. The second half of the show will feature themes from space-related TV shows and movies, accompanied by light effects.

More recently, the band is planning to attend the Magic Mountain Music Festival. The band will compete with about 40 other high school bands from Texas, Arizona and California at Hart High School in Newhall. After being judged and critiqued, students will be able to attend musical workshops. Awards for the best performances will be given out in one of Magic Mountain's theaters.

The money needed to fund the Magic Mountain expedition was raised through car washes, bake sales and refreshment sales at high school sporting events with the help of the Band Boosters Club. The Boosters Club is made up of friends and parents of the band.

Says Robins, "This year the band is going full force and hitting a lot of firsts." One of these firsts is inviting other bands to play for Carmel High. So far Carmel has had the opportunity to listen to the San Francisco Symphonic Band and Jazz Ensemble, the Carlsbad High Chorus and the Cal State Northridge Lab and B Bands. This is the first of a series of bands planned to visit CHS in the upcoming years.

Other music groups have also caught the word about Robin's superior musical and leadership abilities, and that is why he has been selected to be the new band director for the Monterey Community Band. This band welcomes musicians of all ages to attend and be a part of the rehearsals. The band is coordinating a concert for Monterey's birthday on June 7 in Colton Hall, Monterey. For more information, the Monterey Parks and Recreation Committee can give more details to those interested.

Fiesta Primavera for Chartwell

AFICIONADOS DE La Fiesta and of Chartwell School came to San Carlos Cathedral Hall for Fiesta Primavera — an evening of silent and live auction bidding and a Mexican dinner.

Chartwell School is a not-for-profit school to serve the special educational needs of children with dyslexia. The children, although bright, must learn differently — thus the need for Chartwell. Among dyslexic people: Thomas Edison, Albert Einstein, Nelson Rockefeller, Gen. George Patton, Bruce Jenner, Jackie Stewart, Cher, Tom Cruise and Winston Churchill (whose home was named Chartwell — thus the name for the Seaside school).

Ted and Velma Belestreri were honorary chairpersons, Fiesta chairwomen were Nichi McMahan and Betsy Shea. In charge of the live auction: Kathy Enea and Cindy Halley and the silent auction items were gathered by Judy and Norm Peterson and the Tom Ewens. Raffle prizes were garnered by Marla and Jim Dabney with decorations by Katie and Tom Ewen.

MC Jude Mandel (who also sang) introduced the mariachi band and guitarist Peter Evans and pointed out some of the auction items. Hank Ketcham (art work), Rob Talbott (chardonnay). Sally Dunkelberger (antique etching), Tom Ewen (redwood bench), Shary Farr (A picnic at Big Creek and a day with Sam Farr), Sharon and David Bates donated an English pram — the Rolls of baby carriages, Bettsy Shea (a Mexican wall hanging). Judy Peterson, Michi Takigawa, Betsy Shea and Nichi McMahan donated a dinner for eight in winner's home and Harvey Kilpatrick gave a cruise for eight on his wonderful boat. TV's Chuck Huggins volunteered as auctioneer.

FASHION FOR FRIENDS OF HOSPICE

Those loyal Friends of Hospice turned out in force — 240 strong — for a delightfull Spring Time Lunch and Fashion Displa by Carmel Plaza merchants at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Hospice board member Alan Lisser came to the microphone to pay tribute to the late Patricia Moore who devoted her time and talent to support Hospice. Then he thanked the luncheon/show chairwoman Dee Robertson. She was assisted by Audrey Schrader and Georgia von Richter. Alan then added, "We could probably make more money by lending Dee and Audrey to other organizations."

On behalf of the Carmel Plaza merchants (who presented the fashion show) Judy Cole gave a check for $1,000 to Mr. Lisser for the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Phyllis Hubbard, in a animal print dress, was commentator for spring and summer clothes as her pro models entered the runway through a bright balloon archway. Laura Ashley and Talbott (two of the latest Plaza shops) participated.

Lucky door-prize winners of gift certificates for the Plaza were Betty Ghent, Susan Freeland and Lucille Isaacson.

MASTERS OF FOOD AND WINE

In its continuing search for the best, Highlands Inn, along with Lufthansa Airlines brought together a great international meeting of wine and food creators to the spot where there is a great meeting of land and sea.

Peter Komposch (general manager), David Fink (food and beverage manager), chefs Donald Ferch and Guy Leroy worked out details with Lufthansa and culinary critic Mario Scheuermann. German chefs and German vintners joined with Americans to bring to the public instruction and enjoyment of the best of both countries.

Central Coast restaurant owners, chefs, wine connoisseurs, gourmets, hosts and hostesses were enthusiastic about the adventure. As G.B. Shaw espoused, "There is no love sincerer than the love of food." How true!

For the opening reception there was a good mix of welcoming drinks and palate ticklers. Everyone was raving about a delicious pate with raisin sauce made that morning by Rainer Wolter (La Mer, Hamburg) and the corn pancakes with sour cream and caviar by Don Ferch (executive chef at the Highlands). It was a grand prelude to a symphony of cuisine and fine wines.

"Do we eat the flowers?" was a question soon answered as this area produces many edible treasures. Field trips included one to Quail Mountain (Watsonville) where owner Carol Schmidt has a 45-acre organic farm specializing in culinary herbs and edible flowers — borage, nasturtium, giant red sage, geranium leaves, sage, rosemary, basil and oregano. Carol recommends not trying any foreign or common flowers or leaves. So, take heed.

Another destination was "Fowls Fare," a wild game farm in Gonzales. Owner Bruce Barotti (whose grandfather founded the artichoke industry here in the '20s) raises more then 70 varieties of upland game birds and waterfowl. He ships 40,000 pheasants and 250 Russian wild boar a year, along with 5,000 quail every two weeks.

From his Hazel Bell Mushroom Farm in Watsonville, Jim Hammond ships 5,000 lbs. of shiitake and tree oyster mushrooms weekly. Hidden Springs Farm (Watsonville) is a 20-acre organic farm on which owner Don Anderson produces 12 varieties of baby lettuce including green oak leaf, red sail, ruby, red oak. He ships 1,200 cases a month all over the country.

Panel discussions tapped the expertise of pros for an overview of the food and wine industries. Whether you were searching for "a big, fruity, yet dry-style wine," or, a "round, clean crisp and assertive taste," or, "a slightly youthful petulance," or, "an exquisite balance with attractive spiced flavors," or merely choosing to dine on masterfully concocted flavors, or learning to prepare food fit for gods, there was something for everyone.

Local hostesses, some chefs, as well as Lisa Kittler (who drove in from Scottsdale) donned aprons in the Inn's kitchen, eager to learn the secrets of two American stars of contemporary cuise — Guy Leroy (Highlands) and Wolfgang Puck (an Austrian credited with reviving California culinary heritage). Puck owns Spago (in LA and Tokyo) and Chinois in Santa Monica.

We witnessed the students mastering the art of cutting an artichoke for "Artichoke Bottom Salad with Pastilla," readying garlic for "Creamy Garlic Custard," and assisting in the preparation of "Salad of Grilled Chantrelles" (or cepes).

Long-time friends (time at Maxim's in Paris) Guy and Wolf helped to clear the culinary labyrinth, They are not temperamental about the art and it sounded like a family cook-in with such conversation as, "Who stole the mustard?" "A little more garlic, please," "Where's the basil?" and, "Will someone bring a garbage can?"

A relaxed Wolf said, "Cooking is like making love. You do it a little differently every time." And in between, this repartee from Wolf and his wife Barbara Lazaroff (who designed the restaurants). Wolf: "Watch how the cheesecake is made so you can make it for me." Barbara: "I will if you learn to burn the toast in the morning." "We can eat cheesecake instead of toast."

Making up part of the family-like atmosphere was the Pucks' dear friend Maida Heatter (author of five cookbooks) who demonstrated her famous "Bulls-Eye Cheesecake" with the assistance of her husband Ralph Daniels. The demo was a spur-of-the-moment favor for her friends and an extra bonus for the class.

If you are lucky enough to be a dinner guest of Gloria Dake, Patricia Smith, Ramsey or Artie Early, you will enjoy the latest in the culinary arts.

David Armanasco was moderator for the discussion "Dry

Council delays discussion on parking issues

By NANCY HILLS

PARKING POLICIES can wait until after May 12.

That was the decision of the Carmel City Council at its special meeting last Friday when consultants Paul Krupka and Denise Duffy presented a report on parking in Carmel.

Tuesday, May 12 is the date of another special city council meeting, when the council will consider a proposal from EMC Planning Group, Inc. for a five-level parking garage on the north end of Sunset Center.

The council decided that answering four policy questions presented in the council packet should wait until after the determination about the garage.

"We have a specific proposal on the table," Evans said.

He added it was only one of many proposals for a garage at Sunset Center and a decision on the garage could change answers on the policy questions, he said.

Those questions included:

- Does the council believe there is a parking deficit in Carmel that should be resolved and should the solution primarily address the needs of visitors, employees, residents, or all three?
- Should off-street parking lots be the only solution or should there be a general parking management program?
- Should a parking garage or lot (off-street solution) be in one larger facility or scattered about the community?
- What are the financing options for a parking solution: assessment district, revised in-lieu fee plan, a bond or other?

Krupka, of traffic engineers Wilbur Smith & Associates and Duffy, of Denise Duffy & Associates, had completed Phase One of the three-part study on Carmel and were before the council to get some direction on proceeding with Phase Two. The report had been commissioned by the previous city council.

This council decided to wait until after May 12 to decide on whether to proceed with the report.

Phase One included an analysis of existing parking and circulation in Carmel and Phase Two would analyze solutions and alternatives to problems identified in Phase One. Phase Three would complete an environmental impact report on Carmel.

Phase One was conducted through on-street interviews with drivers and parkers, traffic counts and interviews with businesses and residents.

Krupka told the council that there was a deficit of at least 200 to 300 parking spaces in Carmel and more if the commercial district overflow into the residential district was included.

Management of the problems are "policy decisions," Krupka said, and could include changing time restrictions on parking spaces, increasing required parking spaces per commercial square footage, parking structures and better use of existing parking facilities.

A major circulation problem is double-parked trucks blocking the streets.

Of great interest was a panel discussion "Contemporary Trends Versus Classic Cuisine: Where's the Balance?" Mario Scheuerman moderated for such famous chefs as Jimmy Schmidt (Rattlesnake Club, Denver), Johnathan Waxman (Jams, New York and London), Joachim Splichal (Regency Club, NY and LA), and the four visiting German chefs: Josef Viehauser, Ranier Wolter, Adolf Anderson, and Johann Lafer.

The windup was a black-tie reception in Lobos Lounge followed by dinner in the Fireside Room. It featured a menu prepared by German and American master chefs and wines selected from participating vineyard masters.

The menu: Marinated Scallops by Josef Viehhauser (Le Canard, Hamburg); Escalope of Salmon, Black and White Sesame Seed, Ginger Sauce by Jimmy Schmidt; Whitefish with Curry by Josef Viehhauser; Wiener Schnitzel of Artichoke Vinaigrette of Rabbit by Joachim Splichal; The Best of Veal by Don Ferch/Guy Leroy/Josef Viehhauser; and Dessert Surprise by Adolf Andersen (Konditorei Andersen, Hamburg), Johann Lafer (Le Val d'Or, Guldental), Gerhard Michler (Restaurant 101, San Francisco), and Rainer Wolter.

The appropriate wines for each course were selected by Cary Gott, Forest Tancer, Michael Grgich, Norbert Holderrieth, Richard Arrowood, Bernhard Breuer, Dan Duckhorn, prince Michael Salm zu Salm, Richard Graff and Bernd Phillippi. The Highlands Inn was and is an inn to linger in. Bon appetit!

trascend the tensions," she feels, "Because art is on a personal level, it is important to share at the grassroots level."

She took along works of 21 women artists from 14 states and found the USSR artists fascinated by the variety of media we have in our country: watercolor, pastels, oils, collage, graphics and jewelry design. Most Soviet art is done in oils. She was able to meet with a few dissident artists who still paint and still have hope. Only occasionally are their works ferreted out of the country.

However, the first question asked by almost everyone she encountered was, "It is true that AIDS is all over the USA?"

Mrs. Preston conducts symposiums of emerging women artists throughout the U.S. She is a teacher, art consultant and professional watercolorist. Her exhibit at Hartnell Art Gallery "East Meets West" may be seen through May 8. Having lived in the Philippines for several years, traveled the Orient, and with ancestral roots reaching back to Yugoslavia, she is able to relate to several cultures on a practical as well as an artistic level.

On a lighter side, Barbara said, "My real claim to fame is that my husband I and were invited to dine with Princess Grace and Prince Rainier in the Royal Palace, Monaco. Her husband collects toys for orphans wherever he is stationed and when he did so in Monaco the result was an invitation to dine with royalty.

"Princess Grace was so French and royal and the Prince was so American," she said.

She has been chosen by the U.S. Commission for the Bicentennial to paint for the Honorarium for the signing of the Constitution which opens Sept. 17th. And there is a strong possibility that she will return to this area, if she accepts the challenge of setting up an art program for the prisoners in Soledad.

HOUSE-OF-WAX DIRECTOR RETURNS

Film director and artist Andre De Toth and his wife, Anne, were in the area for a weekend and Charles and Sandra Chrietzberg entertained them at The General Store, Carmel with a very special touch.

Mr. De Toth is famous for directing the classic 1953 3-D movie House of Wax and with the help of Fred Dame (Wine Master of the Sardine Factory) Charles was able to serve a 1953 Chambertin Burgundy to accompany the dinner.

If you remember, the effervescent Mr. De Toth came in for the Monterey Film Festival, but also had an art exhibit at Calle Court Gallery of his paintings and sculptures. He is busy working on his next film effort Man of Wax.

"Andre signed the bottle of Chambertin Burgundy and I will always treasure it," Charles told the Pine Cone.

REAL ESTATE TODAY

Escrow in the 80's

By Jayde Thompson

Not too long ago, when you were ready to sell your home the escrow process was a fairly quick and simple procedure. You and the buyer deposited all the necessary documents and funds with a neutral third — the escrow officer — and you instructed the officer to carry out the provisions of the sales agreement.

Today, there's a lot more to it than that! You and your Realtor have to work very closely with the escrow officer to make sure escrow closes quickly and successfully. The volume of real estate business has increased dramatically. Escrow companies are much busier than they used to be! You can avoid delays by making sure that all your paperwork, including the structural pest control report and the fire insurance policy, is complete and accurate.

The escrow transactions have become more complicated, too. But it's the job of a good Realtor to see you through any difficulties that might arise, such as a snag in the preliminary title report. Your Realtor will be working on your behalf with both the escrow officer and the title officer to resolve problems before they can jeopardize the sale of your home. To find out more about just what a Realtor can do for you, call me, Jayde Thompson, your Carmel specialist at Real Estate By The Sea at 624-1444 or stop by my office at San Carlos and Seventh.

"Yabba-dabba-do, it's Bay Day!" is this year's theme, inspired by pre-schoolers interest in dinosuars.

Bay Day, according to organizers, is one of the few carnivals on the peninsula geared toward pre-schoolers. Simple games with prizes, silent auction, bake sale, crafts, plant sales, and food booths will be available. Admission is free.

Bay School is a parent cooperative nursery school operated by the adult school of the Carmel Unified School District. Parents finance much of the upkeep, operational costs and improvements to the school. Proceeds will go towards the school.

THROWING OUT the first ball for Carmel Youth Baseball league's Opening Day ceremonies Saturday was none other than Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood (yes, he's a southpaw). Eastwood threw a ball out to a catcher representing each of the divisions in the league, including the girls' softball league, then signed the balls for the youths. (Holly McFarland photo.)

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

The Motorists Prayer

CARMEL ROTARY, LA PLAYA

April 21, 1983

The Carmel Pine Cone/CV Outlook

During my historic and unprecedented spring housecleaning, I came across this short rhyme. When we read the statistics of fatal car accidents, many caused by drinking drivers, we are shocked! Cars have proven to have caused more deaths than the fatalities of all our wars since the 1770s.

The Motorist's Prayer
by the late Rev. T. Short

Give me a steady hand, a watchful eye
That none may suffer hurt when I pass by.
Thou gavest life, I pray no act of mine
May take away nor mar that gift of Thine.
Shield those, dear Lord, who bear me company,
From foolish folks and all calamity.
Teach me to use my car for others' need,
Not miss through lack of wit nor love of speed
The beauties of Thy world, that thus I may
With joy and courtesy go on my way.
We ask this in our Risen Masters' name. Both he and St. Christopher leave our cars when we hit 65 mph. Amen.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Debbie Lowery, a designer of retirement communities for the past ten years, teaches classes at the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising. So they can better understand the problems faced by the elderly and handicapped, Lowery has her students simulate being wheelchair-bound or having poor eyesight by taking three-hour field trips to department stores in wheelchairs or wearing vaseline-coated eyeglass to simulate cataracts. "I could explain older person's problems all day long to my students," she says, "but they'd never understand until they experienced the predicaments for themselves.

Early retirement is a popular trend. According to a government survey of new Social Security recipients, only 9 percent of men and 4 percent of women are delaying their retirements until age 66 or later.

Remember When? 1934 — The smash hit Broadway musical of that season was "Anything Goes"; the music was written by Cole Porter.

CHS STUDENTS GARNERS MATH HONOR

Michael C. Yoon, a 12-year old junior at Carmel High School, has become a member of the Johns Hopkins University's Center for the Advancement of Academically Talented Youth (CTY) National Mathematics Talent Search, "700-800 on the SAT-Math Before Age 13." In 1987, 75 young people born in 1974 or later were added to this group. He has been offered a $100 Merit scholarship for the CTY summer program.

It is estimated that only about 1 in 10,000 12-year-olds would score 700-800 on the mathematics portion of the Scholastic Aptitude Test. His score of 720 placed him in the top 2 percent among the college-bound seniors.

His SAT-Verbal score of 620, which places him in the top 6 percent among the college-bound seniors, was just 10 points below the CTY National Verbal Talent Search, "630-800 on the SAT-V Before Age 13." qualifying score.

He holds a California High School Certificate of Proficience, which he obtained at age 11. He is certain to be named on the National Merit Semifinalist list in the fall based on his PSAT scores which yielded a selection index of 205 placing him well above the required top one-half of one percent among the juniors.

He will enter Phillips Academy, the 209-year-old private school in Andover, Massachusetts in the fall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Yoon of Pebble Beach.

Collegiate, international rugby teams compete

THE STAGE is set and all teams are in place for the official 29th annual Pebble Beach Rugby Classic, arriving Saturday and Sunday, May 2-3 at Collins Polo Field in Pebble Beach.

In addition to the 32 team Classic Invitational, the weekend will include the finals of the eighth annual Michelob National Collegiate Championships, the culmination tournament from territorial winners among the strongest colleges and universities nationwide, as well as a special pre-World Cup exhibition between America's National Team, the U.S. Eagles, and the National Team of Tunisia.

The U.S. Eagles, one of only 16 teams invited to the World Cup, will be facing a tough Tunisian National Team arriving directly from a game with the Soviet Union (they tied the Soviets and defeated Rumania earlier this winter.) If the Eagles are to have any success in the early rounds of the World Cup play, they must peak before leaving the United States. So, this international game and their performance in it will be their lone chance to evaluate their World Cup strength and test the team's cohesion since its formation last Feb. 15.

The official draw and seedings have been announced by the Northern California Rugby Union.

Top seeded BATS (Bay Area Touring Side) could have trouble on their hands in the form of perennial favorites and second seeded Old Blues and the unknown power of the third seed and highly favored Bagneres-de-Digorre of Tournay, France. The BATS and Old Blues might have easier first round pairings (agains the old Aztecs of San Diego and San Jose Skylarks respectively) but Bagneres, sporting a strong club side with French National Team members as well as being coached by the famous national team star Jean-Michael Aguirre, must first get past the opening game against host and last year's division II winner, the Monterey Rugby Club. The game will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Other teams in strong contention include the Rock and Roll Rebels of Ottowa, Ontario, Canada; Old Puget Sound of Seattle, Washington, seeded sixth; as well as out-of-state participants Colorado University National Touring Side, and the Kansas City Blues of Kansas City, Missouri.

The eighth annual Michelob National Collegiate Championships will feature first round pairings of Bowling Green University representing the Midwest region versus the Air Force Academy of Colorado representing the Western Territory at 12:10 p.m. Saturday. With Dartmouth College from the Chamber ensembles assemble for a musical showdown

THE 16TH ANNUAL Carmel Chamber Music Competition will take place on Saturday, May 2, beginning at 1 p.m. Winners of the competition will perform in the awards concert on Sunday, May 3, at 3 p.m. Both events will take place in Sunset Theater, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel, and are sponsored by the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula.

The Carmel Chamber Music Competition is national with 17 groups from the nation's foremost university music departments and conservatories entering the competition this year. Of these, 11 ensembles with various combinations of instruments were selected to compete for the awards in the Saturday auditions.

This year there are two first awards of $2,500 each, one for strings, with or without keyboard or woodwind, and the other for woodwinds or brass. The second award is the $1,750 Florence Allen Award, and the third is the $1,250 W. Frederick Schaad Award. These awards are made possible by two generous, anonymous donors, major gifts from the City of Carmel, the Monterey County Cultural Council, the National Pro-Am Youth Fund, and generous donations by members of the Society.

Winning an award is difficult and demonstrates a high level of musical achievement. A two-tier judging procedure is used. Applicants must be under 26 years of age and submit a tape recording of two contrasting compositions. A screening committee of five outstanding local musicans uses these recordings to select those invited to compete before five distinguished judges. The winners are announced at the end of the Saturday auditions and will perform at the Awards Concert on Sunday.

Members of the screening committee who spent many hours judging the seventeen tapes were David Hagemeyer, committee chairman, a violist, violinist and chamber musician; John Erickson, violinist and prominent member of the MPC Music Department faculty; Katie-Clare Mazzeo, well-known pianist and harpsichordist, member of the

Johannesen performs with symphony

PIANIST GRANT JOHANNESEN will appear in concert with the Monterey County Symphony in a series of performances planned Sunday through Tuesday, May 3-5. Concerts will begin at 8 p.m. on successive nights in Monterey, Carmel and Salinas.

In a career that spans more than 40 years, Johannesen has secured international status of the highest order. Continual appearances with American orchestras and engagements with European organizations and the international recital circuit have elicited much acclaim. Johannesen was chosen to be the only soloist on the national and international tours of the New York Philharmonic and Cleveland Orchestras which included tours of the Soviet Union. These and many other tours abroad have prompted the United States government to comment repeatedly on Johannesen's superior abilities as a "cultural ambassador" of the United States.

Among his many engagements, Johannesen has appeared with the Utah, Phoenix, Wichita, Omaha, Santa Barbara, Vienna, Munich and American symphony orchestras. He has played with most of the important conductors of our time incuding Solti, Mazel, Ozawa, Kubelik, Steinberg and Robert Shaw. He made his New York orchestral debut with the New York Philharmonic under the direction of George Szell which marked a long and distinguished assocation.

A recipient of many honorary doctoral degrees, Grant Johannesen has served as a panelist with the National Endowment of the Arts, a judge of many international piano competitions, and as president of the Cleveland Institute of Music. In November 1985, he was awarded the Legion D'Honneur by the French government for his substantial contribution in the area of performance and recording of French music. For his appearance with the Monterey County Symphony, Johannesen will be playing the Piano Concerto No. 4 in C Minor by Camille Saint-Saens.

On the same program the Monterey County Symphony under the direction of Music Director Conductor, Clark E. Suttle will perform the Symphony No. 5 in C Sharp Minor by Gustav Mahler.

The concert will be presented on Sunday

MUSIC CORNER

By Jo Ann La Torra

Brahms' 'Requiem' challenges I Cantori

I CANTORI di Carmel, under the direction of Sal Ferrentelli, gave a competent performance of Brahms' German Requiem at the Carmel Mission Basilica last weekend. Two problems were apparent, both of which could be controlled.

The first concerns one of the crucial differences between amateur and professional standing in music. It is not basically one of standards — good music deserves the best attainable, and we have all, on occasion, heard "amateur" performances that exceeded the professionals.

This amateur choral group is very good — capable of a lovely sound and exhibiting splendid control. But a professional choir would get to perform a work many times, thus giving it a chance to grow and mature. Amateur groups rarely repeat large works, except at several years' remove, which can mean virtually a new choir. And, as any performer will tell you, there is no substitute for repetition.

The other problem concerns space. As wonderful as the Mission is on many levels, it is just not large enough to accommodate the sound produced by a large choir and a full orchestra. The Requiem was premiered in a German cathedral, possibly several times the size of the Mission. There were times the other night when the sheer volume gave rise to fantasies of what might be happening to the walls.

With those caveats out of the way, the performance itself can be addressed. There were many moments of beautiful choral sound, and the dynamic range was excellent. The German diction of the chorus was admirable, not an easy feat. Caterina Micieli's solo work was fine; baritone Peter Tuff's pleasant voice, however, didn't quite have the projection necessary to get through the chorus.

Balance got to be a large problem. The higher women's voices, especially, suffered in quality as they strove to be heard over the orchestra. The orchestral sound was a bit strident and the lower parts were murky — possibly effects of the acoustics. Intonation wasn't bad, but attacks were sticky, especially in the low brass.

Ferrentelli's conception of the work seems to be dramatic and extroverted. Given the problems of sound and balance, it was probably more black-and-white than he really intended. Subtleties of harmonic modulation and rhythm simply got swept away.

It would be interesting to hear this same work next year, to see what processes of growth might take place. Far-fetched idea? We listen to Handel's Messiah, a work of considerably less substance, at least once a year. Devotees of the Bach Festival hear the B minor Mass every other year, with Passions in between. This gives amateur groups some of the same breaks the pros get.

Valley gardens welcome visitors Sunday, May 3

"Garden Delights" is the theme of the eighth annual Garden Walk presented by the Carmel Valley Garden Association. Seven private gardens will be open to the public along Carmel Valley Road from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday, May 3. Each garden will be marked by streamers planted along the roadside.

The walk is organized as a benefit for several charitable organizations in Carmel Valley. Tickets are $5 and can be purchased at any garden or at Chateau Julien, located on Carmel Valley Road 5.2 miles east of Highway 1. The winery will be open for wine tasting on Sunday.

Tickets will also be sold on Saturday at card tables set up at Mid-Valley Shopping Center, Brinton's and the Crossroads. A map to each of the gardens is printed on the ticket.

Some of the settings and gardens featured on the tour this year include:

• A goldfish pond and patio that enclose a gallery in which an artist displays the paintings of her garden;

• A traditional garden, but one which includes a large blue rose collection and a Japanese tea house in a country-style landscape complete with black slate hot tub;

• Spaciousness and serenity are found in a wooded garden of native trees — sycamores, madrone and oak, and a pool;

• A weeping willow stands beside a pond, beyond which blooms a collection of orchids;

• A garden surrounded what are reported to be two of the oldest trees in the Valley, a bay and an oak. Sweeping vistas of the valley and Santa Lucia Range, an expanse of lawn, ornamental pear trees and rock and fern gardens;

• A natural garden with spring wildflowers and old oaks;

• One of Carmel Valley's loveliest gardens: prize-winning roses, a blaze of perennials and velvet lawns.

YWCA trains crisis line volunteers

Three times per year the YWCA offers training classes to women in the community who are interested in serving on the Domestic Violence Crisis Line.

These classes include the dynamics of family violence, crisis intervention techniques and appropriate legal action. This volunteer training is held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. for three consecutive weeks beginning on Tuesday, June 2 at the YWCA office, 404 Camino El Estero, Monterey.

Volunteers dedicated to helping others seek violence free relationships serve six-hour shifts weekly, answering calls from their own homes.

The 24-hour crisis line handles over 100 calls a month. Volunteers find that the training provides them with opportunities to help others as well as developing counseling skills and providing career opportunities. For more information, call 649-0834.

Kites take to Carmel skies for 56th annual festival

A CARMEL tradition of 56 year's standing returns on Saturday, May 2. The annual Carmel Kite Festival is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. on Carmel Beach at the foot of Ocean Avenue.

The annual contest is designed for kite fliers of all ages. All kites must be homemade and are judged on their flying ability, workmanship and creativity. Trophies and award ribbons will be presented to the winners. Everyone who enters will receive a participation ribbon.

For kitemakers, there is a display of books on how to make kites in the children's department at Harrison Memorial Library.

Registration for the Kite Festival will begin at 12:30 p.m. Saturday. There is no fee to participate. Judging will begin at 1:30 p.m. at Carmel Beach.

The festival is sponsored by the Carmel Host Lions Club and the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Department. For more information, call 626-1255.

Human Race generates funds for many charities

Registration is now being taken for the fifth annual Human Race, a community-wide fundraiser for non-profit agencies, schools, clubs, churches and organizations on the Monterey Peninsula.

The 10-kilometer walk-a-thon will take place May 9, beginning and ending at Monterey High School. The walk-a-thon will go through Monterey and Pacific Grove. It is designed to be an easy walk for children, adults and senior citizens.

Each person who takes part in the Human Race finds sponsors to pay for each kilometer walked. Seventy-five percent of the money raised goes to the participant's favorite organization. Twenty-five percent will go to cover expenses.

The Human Race is a statewide event. Races will be held the same day in approximately 26 California communities.

Volunteers in Action assumes the responsibility for planning and managing the event. It provides printed materials, pledge sheets, prizes, refreshments, staffs the route, handles publicity, determines prize winners and accounts for the money once it is collected.

Any non-profit agency, school, church or club on the Monterey Peninsula can participate by registering and recruiting walkers.

In 1986, more than 1,000 walkers raised $83,974 for 90 organizations. The Monterey Peninsula came in second in the state as to the number of walkers and the sum of money collected.

Registration applications are available at Volunteers in Action, 444 Pearl St., No. A-24, Monterey.

For additional information, call 373-6177.

Jungian principles put in focus

AN INTRODUCTION to Processwork titled "Follow the Leader" will be the focus of the Friday, May 1 program presented by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung. The program, offering a new path to Jung's ideas, will begin at 7 p.m. at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel. Participants will learn how the "dreaming body" can be the leader in the path to individuation.

The evening's exploration begins with this quotation: "In a flash I understood that there must be something like a dreambody, an entity which is both dream and body at once." That statement by Jungian Analyst Arnold Mindell introduces his new concepts about how everyone can gain access to information contained within the vital link between dreams and body signals and symptoms.

Instead of "getting rid of" the ache, pain, or chronic condition, process and dreambody science attempts to learn what the body is trying to communicate. Often, the same message is carried by a dream, which helps individuals relate the meanings of both dream and body signal to living everyday life more creatively.

Participants will receive both didactic and experiential learnings — basic processwork terms will be described, illustrated, and then experienced by guided work in dyads and triads. Presenters will be Joseph Pagano and Tony Schaurer.

The public is invited — donations and prior registrations are requested but not mandatory. The C.G. Jung Friends is a group of people who enjoy sharing their enthusiasm for the Swiss psychiatrist's ideas. Call 649-8809 for further information.

Alzheimer's victims' needs addressed

In response to growing demand, the Monterey Adult School and Visiting Nurse Association Community Services has increased the capacity of the Alzheimer's Day Care Resource Center in Seaside.

The addition of five new participants brings the center to its new capacity of 19, with 12 victims of Alzheimer's disease on the waiting list.

The Alzheimer's Day Care Resource Center is a state-funded program operated in cooperation with Monterey County, Central Coast Visiting Nurse Association and Monterey Peninsula Unified School District Adult School. The center provides a day care program for victims of Alzheimer's disease and support for family members.

"A main goal of the program is to help victims of Alzheimer's disease to function at optimum level. We provide activities, exercises and various classes, along with occupational and physical therapy, ongoing nutritional and health monitoring, and a psychosocial component," Ann McPerson, vice president of VNA Community Services, said. "We hope that additional participants can be added to the program next year."

Granite Canyon Fish and Game facility schedules open house

THE MARINE Resources Laboratory and the Marine Pollution Studies Laboratory of the California Department of Fish and Game are featuring their 16th annual open house on Saturday, May 2, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. These facilities are located at Granite Canyon, nine miles south of Carmel on the ocean side of Highway 1.

Primary studies at the Marine Resources Laboratory involve mass cultivation of red and pink abalones. The laboratory-cultured abalone are used for experimental seeding programs in southern California. Other research at the laboratory involves the speckled bay scallop.

The adjacent Marine Pollution Studies Laboratory is studying impacts of common marine pollutants on California marine life. Currently, larval and embryonic stages of abalones, mysid shrimps, anchovies and giant kelp are being investigated.

A visit to these laboratories will be both informative and interesting for the entire family. In addition to displays of ongoing activities, there will be exhibits from other Department of Fish and Game central California marine projects. These will include fish, shellfish, and sea otter displays, as well as a touch tank.

Personnel will be on hand to discuss marine biology topics and to explain the Department's research and management programs. This is the only day of the year the laboratories are open to the public.

THEATER REVIEW

By Ann Nawrocki

'...Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean' premieres at GroveMont

THE STAGE of the GroveMont Theater Arts Center has been transformed into one of the last genuine five 'n dime stores — complete with comic book racks, old timey furnishings and knick-knacks, for Ed Graczyk's Come Back to the Five 'n Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean. The store is the setting for the reunion of the Disciples of James Dean. Twenty years after Dean's death the friends gather to sing "The Eyes of James Dean are Upon Us" and reminisce about the good old days. As they do, their recollections are mingled with flashbacks of events they would perhaps rather not recall.

The dime store stands in a "hotter-than-hell" stretch of the Texas Bible belt. Due to a record drought of three year's duration, it's fresh out of water — but there's plenty of Orange Crush.

Viki Hurst as Juanita, the graying proprietor, provides a marvelous shoo-fly performance. Her audience is practically sweating from the illusory heat suggested by Juanita's every movement. By this time Mona (Nikki McKee) returns by bus from her yearly pilgrimage to the filming site of Giant which starred James Dean — whom Mona says fathered her son. The heat might yet have been more convincing if, after her two-hour wait for bus repairs in the desert, Mona had taken more than a few sips of her Orange Crush. It required a little longer for McKee's execution of her role as Mona to warm up as well.

Gina Ferrari is hot, in more ways one, in her portrayal of Sissy, the former roller derby queen awaiting her chance to escape the heat of West Texas through the Ice Capades. Sissy, the floozy of the gang and Juanita, the Bible-bearning teetotaler, provide a great deal of the comic relief throughout the show.

SISSY (Gina Ferrari) and JoAnne (Lorraine Olsen, right), talk over "old times" in the GroveMont production of Come Back to the Five 'n Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean.

When Juanita finally relents and permits the drinking of alcohol in her dime store, but insists the shades be pulled down lest one of her prayer meeting friends pass by, Sissy retorts, "If they all drink behind closed doors, don't mean we have to!"

The play is punctuated with flashbacks. There is an abruptness to the first flashback that jars the senses somewhat, but director Mickie Mosley Braun makes exceptional use of GroveMont's close quarters to stage the effect. The now broken overhead fan begins to turn and the lights dim, signalling rain and the cooler, greener memories of the parched little town of McCarthy, Texas. Maria Ivy Cates (Mona, then) and particularly Kris Ingram (Sissy, then) match their 20-years-senior counterparts effectively — making the flashbacks easier to follow.

THE JUMBLE of scenes from the past purposely hits another chaotic peak at the end of act one, when the Disciples of James Dean discover the true identity of a supposed stranger to the Crestmont five 'n dime. The stage is then flooded with tragic memories that had been suppressed for 20 years. This "stranger," Joanne (Lorraine M. Olsen), once a fan of James Dean herself, reminds the club members, for starters, that Dean is dead.

Like the jolt at the start of a roller coaster ride, the startling finish to act one serves to fine tune the audience's attention, gluing all eyes to the track and pulling all in attendance into the aisles of the five 'n dime.

One by one, the characters are forced to remove the blindfolds they had each put on themselves so many years ago, despite insistence by Stella May (Sandy Williams) to remember only the good times. The truth is painful and at times hard to bear, but the tears it brings give life once again to the drought-stricken town and draws the friends even closer together than they had been 20 years earlier.

The GroveMont production of Come Back to the Five 'n Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean makes for an entertaining evening overall. It leaves you with a warm feeling for old friends and happy times.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

Staff Players stage 'John Brown's Body'

IT TAKES COURAGE to mount a production of a dramatic reading of Stephen Vincent Benet's epic Civil War Poem, but the members of the Staff Players Repertory Company rose to that challenge. They took up the Curtis Canfield stage adaptation of the book length work and performed it with conviction and skill. On a stark stage, in period dress, the troupe of mostly Staff Rep regulars took us through the period from John Brown's raid on Harper's Ferry to Lee's surrender. Sustained by Benet's language, we were lifted up to view the panorama of that great national tragedy.

And what language! Benet is mostly unread now and that is a shame. Some will remember The Devil and Daniel Webster and Walter Huston's portrayal of the devil in the movie that was made of it. Few are aware that Benet wrote nine volumes of verse, five novels, and many short stories.

However, of all that he wrote, John Brown's Body (lies a'moulderin' in the grave) seems to be his immortality. Its sweep, its pathos, its sacramental treatment of the Civil War make it a national testament. Ironically, he wrote his quintessentially American work in Paris. Perhaps the distance gave him the perspective to assess his nation's heritage more clearly.

Marcia Hovick ably guides the company through the complex piece with few hitches. It is not an easy task. Timing is critical. Actors must comment upon their characters as they act. They must move in and out of dialect and character rapidly. Accompanying the changes in character are a great number of shifts in perspective. There are two formal narrators, played by Steve Harris and Kirsten Lovell, who sit at stage right and left and whose stirring depictions provide a vivid framework for the vignettes that follow.

The profiles of Lincoln and Lee were powerfully rendered and remind us of the grandeur that these men embodied. The battle scenes were compelling. An added touch was the unexpected sound effects that were created by the players murmuring in unison.

ONE OF THE most touching scenes dealt with two boats full of wounded soldiers going home — one Northern, one Southern — that pass each other on a river. The soldiers chide each other with good humor as they pass, having only recently been mortal enemies.

Individual performances were, on the whole, very good. Tommie Bates as the Boy in Blue was superb, as was Pamela Murphy as the feisty rebel mother left behind to defend the homestead. Norman Stottmeister plays a Georgia dandy and Sheryl Griggs the bitter girl he leaves behind. Elisa Swartz gives a marvelous rendition of a narcissistic Southern Belle. Ann Brown is touching as a "hider," her father having taken the family on the road to escape the ravages of war.

A black actor, whose name is Longfeathers, played the roles of Cudjo, a field hand, and a house servant, Major Domo. He captured that duality that blacks experienced under slavery; the oppression in the fields and the relative safety of life in the big house.

James Goffard brought good gravity to the roles of Lincoln and Brown. Jeff Hudelson gave a solid performance in a variety of smaller roles. Music was provided by Amos Lovell who both played and sang to accentuate the drama.

The length of the work would have been acceptable but for the seats at the Indoor Forest Theater. They have a strict two-hour comfort limit and the production did push that limit.

The staging was stark as I said earlier, with antique wooden chairs and stools on a bare stage. Loel Shuler's costuming was effective, especially for the women. Their lace blouses were rich and intricate. The men's shirts were contemporary but were set off with period cravats.

Several of the performers have given memorable performance in other peninsula productions recently: Pamela Murphy was the hilarious Soot in Bette and Boo at SRO; Norman Stottmeister was the lead in the gripping Hold that Tiger at SRP; Tommie Bates was the frantic director in Noises Off at MPC.

John Brown's Body runs Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays at 8, Sundays at 2:30 through May 10. The Indoor Forest Theater is at Santa Rita and Mountain View streets in Carmel.

G.S. HILL GALLERY

90th birthday retrospective honors Alma Lavenson

A RETROSPECTIVE exhibition of photographs by Alma Lavenson will open in The Friends Gallery on Friday, May 1, and will continue through June 14.

A reception for the artist will be held on Friday, May 1, from 8 to 10 p.m. This exhibition, which features a 60-year span of Lavenson's work, coincides with her 90th birthday on May 20. Susan Ehrens, who organized the major traveling exhibit of Imogen Cunningham's photographs, is the guest curator for this show.

Alma Lavenson, whose interest in photography evolved while she was a student at the University of California, Berkeley, was born in 1897 in San Frnacisco. By 1927, without any formal photographic training, she was successfully submitting photographs to international pictorialist salons and publications. In the earliest work included in this exhibition, she was using the then popular soft-focus pictorialist approach to photograph the Oakland waterfront and landscapes of Northern California.

In 1930, Lavenson met Edward Weston and Imogen Cunningham. Both offered her critical advice, and upon Cunningham's recommendation, Lavenson was one of four non-members invited to participate in Group f/64's first major exhibition at the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco.

SELF-PORTRAIT, Hands, is the title of this 1932 silver print by Alma Lavenson. It is included in the exhibit, "Alma Lavenson: A Ninetieth Birthday Retrospective" opening Friday, May 1 at the Friends of Photography Gallery in Carmel.

'Small works' of Louise Cardeiro Boyer exhibited

LOUISE CADEIRO BOYER'S "Small Works — A Kind of Autobiography," a survey representing more than 40 years of impressions and sketches, will be presented in a benefit exhibit for the Carl Cherry Foundation, beginning Saturday, May 3, in the foundation's gallery.

A CARVED ANGEL in Recife, Brazil, inspired this sketch by Louise Cardeiro Boyer. A collection of her small works will be highlighted this month at the Cherry Gallery, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. A reception for the artist will take place 2 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, May 2.

The series of 40 sketches — employing watercolor, brush and pen and ink — evoke scenes and impressions from Boyer's extensive travels throughout the United States, Europe and Latin America.

Boyer calls the collection "a kind of visual autobiography. Each one is a memory — spanning from Massachusetts to a drawing called 'Orgazined Chaos' done last year while a broken leg forced me to limit my work to a busy table."

"Though many of these sketches eventually were used as the material for paintings, it is the spontaneity of the sketches that make them precious to me," she says.

Boyer grew up in Cambridge and Boston and has lived in Central and South America as well as in Mexico. A graduate of Boston Museum School, she studied painting with Carlos Merida in Mexico City and later with Xavier Gonzales and Hans Hoffman in New England.

In 1954 Boyer moved to Carmel with her husband, pianist-teacher Gilbert Boyer, their three children and a dog.

The move west was followed by a five-year residency in Mexico, Central and South America, where she illustrated reading material for Laubach Literacy and the Peace Corps.

The foreign scenes in the exhibit, Boyer says, are a "response to scenes and people in Europe when my husband gave piano concerts in Spain, France, Italy and Portugal."

The exhibit, which can be seen Wednesdays through Saturdays from 2-4:30 p.m., is divided into four groupings: trees and growing things; room interiors; foreign places and people, and boats.

"They are recallers of faces, loved places I may never see again, trees and growing things which thrilled me with their structure and line and grace," Boyer says.

Boyer has taught in the art department of Derby Academy in Boston and at the Santa Catalina School in Monterey.

A recipient of numerous prizes for both watercolor and oil paintings, Boyer has had 33 solo exhibitions in New England and on the west coast, Europe and Latin America. She has been represented in 13 juried shows, and most recently, displayed at the Carmel Art Association in 1986.

Sales from the exhibit will benefit the Cherry Foundation, a non-profit organization serving the arts, sciences and education.

A reception for the artist will be held at the foundation from 2 to 4:30 p.m., Saturday, May 3.

The Cherry Foundation is located at Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel. For more information, call 624-7491.

John Cunningham to address Artist's Equity

The featured guest at the May meeting of Artists Equity, Central Coast Chapter, will be artist John Cunningham who will discuss some of the issues of use and preservation of the historic Flanders Mansion in Carmel.

The Flanders Mansion is currently the site of the Carmel Art Institute, a school which was started by painter Armin Hansen and which has been directed by Cunningham since 1940. The building had been proposed for demolition and subsequent sale of the city-owned property.

However, other options are currently being explored by a joint study committee from the Carmel forestry, recreation and arboretum commissions. Preservation of the site and possibilities for restoration of the structure for some potential public use are reported to be priorities of the research committee of this group.

It is of special note that John Cunningham joined Artists Equity when the national organization was originally founded in New York. He was a member of the Central Executive Board of the American Artists Congress in 1935-36 during the time Artists Equity was being created from that body and was a friend and colleague of such artists as Stuart Davis and Yasuo Kuniyoshi who were active in the development of Artists Equity.

There will be time for questions and discussion, and a social hour will follow a very brief business meeting.

This meeting will take place Monday, May 4, at 7:30 p.m. at the Estrada Adobe of the Monterey Savings Building, 450 Tyler St., in Monterey. Meetings of Artists Equity are open to professional artists in all media and anyone concerned about issues of the arts in our society. Meetings are regularly scheduled for the first Monday of the month at the Estrada Adobe.

WE'RE DECORATING

JUST FOR YOU, this attractive turn-of-the-century property with a store in front and a tiny apartment in the rear is being done all over. Rent both and enjoy income, or rent one and keep the other for yourself. In any case, you'll have a good investment in an attractive community. $179,000.

IN-LAW

PLENTY of room in this three-bedroom home in New Monterey, with large living room, big family room, and separate dining room, plus glimpse of ocean. As a bonus, there's also a one-bedroom in-law unit, also with peek of ocean, to the rear. A very good value at $189,000.

BIG SUR
Unexcelled View on Partington Ridge

Partington Ridge enjoys a special niche along the extraordinary Sur Coast. Its north/south alignment, coupled with protection from the prevailing northerly storms, provides a warm, sunny micro-climate. The history and people of Partington Ridge have included a fascinating mixture of homesteaders, artists, writers, scientists, musicians, archeologists and educators. The Nicolas Roosevelt Estate's 3+ acres is less than one mile up a surfaced road from California's first Scenic Highway.

The main structure, completed about 1940, with subsequent additions, is situated on the crest of Partington Ridge and surrounded by citrus orchard, gardens, stately trees and meadow at an altitude of about 800'. The utility situation is excellent. This rustic Big Sur home of about 2,000 sq. ft., includes a separate apartment, with kitchen; an addition to the original house. A completely separate guest house with large deck is an added asset to this exceptional property.

Pictured above is the elegant and spacious 30x18 living room, with fireplace and built in bookcases. Of paramount importance, are the views captured from the large windows at each end. The view northwesterly, shown in the photo below, across the Sur Coastline to Pfeiffer Point some seven miles distant, is matched in awesome beauty by the southwesterly outlook along the tumultuous shore.

Describing his experience on Partington Ridge, Henry Miller wrote, in "The Oranges of Hieronymus Bosch," "At dawn its majesty is almost painful to behold. That same prehistoric look. The look of always. Nature smiling at herself in the mirror of eternity." Price of this splendid property is $490,000; the estate sale is subject to court confirmation. Let our Coastal Division provide further details and arrange for your visit.

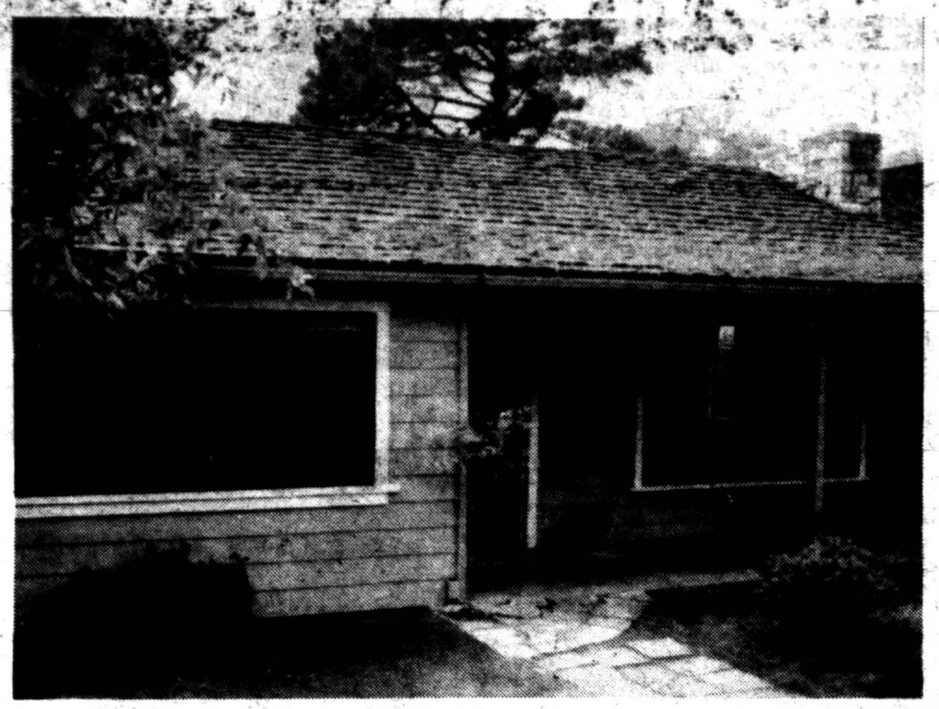
Daisy's Carmel Cottage



When Daisy Bostick lived in this cottage many years ago, it was smaller but no less enchanting. Daisy, you'll remember, was the one-time publisher of The Pine Cone who published a little book, Carmel at Work and Play, back in 1925. That was the first time anyone had really defined the unique charms of this special place, and it was fitting that she should live in such a home as this.

Many additions and improvements have been made since Daisy's day, but the flavor has been preserved. For instance, many of the interior doors and cabinet openings are arched. The living room ceiling is recessed and its walls are gracefully coved to meet the ceiling. The windows are many-paned, and most of them open to intimate views of small garden areas. The floors are sturdy oak, except in the kitchen and den where square red tiles are underfoot.

There are three distinct traffic patterns that circle through the cottage, which not only make it comfortable to get about but work beautifully for entertaining. One begins in the living room and leads through a broad arch to the dining room, past a tiled service bar to the kitchen, on to the comfortable den on the front, and back again to the living room. A second runs through the dining room, down the bedroom corridor, out a French door to the spacious deck and back through other doors to the dining room again. The third utilizes the same corridor, but this time you turn right and come back through the back bedroom, guest bath and front bedroom to where you started.

There are 2 warmly decorated baths, a lovely Colonial fireplace, a covered porch on the front, and 2 giant pine trees that mark the location at 24792 Guadalupe. There's a long butcher block counter, spice shelves, a bar sink, glassed-in china closet recessed in the corridor wall, floor to ceiling bookshelves, and a hidden laundry room. Everything is in apple pie order, totally modern but with echoes of the past.

You can bet that Carmel history has been made inside these walls, and there's more to be made. $219,500.

CARMEL BY BILL BATES

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 14

At last count, 324 homes, barns and ancient inns in New England and certain Middle Atlantic States were displaying a little sign that says "George Washington slept here." We find this disturbing. We have always thought of The Father of Our Country as a vigorous, aggressive leader and, if this is true, he may in fact have dozed through the entire Revolutionary War. One suspects that the aphorism creditied to Benjamin Franklin ("Early to bed, etc.") was inspired by General George. Either that or he went early to bed, got up and did it again several times a night. Of course, we have our own Sleeping Giant right here in Carmel: JACK LONDON. We have run into no less than 9 homes which claim to be the short-term residence (and bedroom) of Yukon Jack. We saw no reason to doubt this until we discovered that he died in 1916, and most of these houses were built in th early 20's. Of course, it's possible that Jack, being the rugged outdoorsman he was, spread out his bedroll on these grounds and slept. Whatever...statistics can be misleading, and our only purpose is to set the record straight.
